CLARA.

A TALE BY WILHELM MEYER.

Spain, the land where our brothers were at one time very fortunately situated, and which a few decades later expelled them so cruelly from its bosom, where high-minded, knightly Jews carried the sword and watched over the king and the interests of their country as its faithful servants, where unpretending men, great from their miserable chambers rears of wisdom and sounds of the deepest sensibility over the whole civilized world—this land is the scene of our present narrative.

Don Juan, the son of the infant Don Manuel, had then—many a century has since then elapsed—possession of the throne of Castile, and Joseph ben Ephraim was the king's first vicegerent, his treasurer, his counselor, in short, all to him; he enjoyed the undivided confidence of the ruler, and he also endeavored at every, even the slightest occasion, to show himself worthy of the same; and the nobles of the realm, the better class of the people and the poor felt themselves happy through the blessed effects which Don Joseph diffused over the land through his love of peace, his noble-mindedness and his liberal hand.

It was a spring evening. The sun had not yet set in the western firmament, and the rays of the ever magnificent globe of fire were still reflected in the mirrors of Guadalquivir, and the air which rested on Seville was yet filled with a burning heat. The inhabitants of Castile's capital waited anxiously for the coolness which sets in so rapidly in these regions—till chambers, or on the more humble pillows in the poorer houses. But in the apartments of Don Joseph work was actively carried on. The king's treasurer sat by an elegantly wrought and richly inlaid writing table, and wrote and calculated, searched for some papers, laid others aside, talked to himself, at times in a pleased and again in a displeased tone. But it was also inviting to work in this room. Rich damask curtains denied to the evening sunbeams any, even the most timid entrance; wherefore a peculiar obscurity prevailed in the apartment. In ornamental baskets there were displayed various flowers, the rich perfume of which was diffused through the room, and the furniture which it contained appeared to have been wrought by the hands of the most skilled masters of their trade, and at the first entrance one could readily discover that an intellectual woman's hand had dominion here, offering with delicate skill the smallest no less than the largest properly and tastefully.

Clara, the beautiful daughter of Don Joseph, watched with her tender filial eye, that everything should be so arranged as to please her father; she watered the flowers with her own hands; she put in order the various little shells and fancy things which were in vogue in those days, and arranged every morning her father's writing materials, and folded up manuscripts and other papers. In the moment, when her respected readers beheld the father at his writing table, Clara was sitting on the sofa, playing some hair. Raven locks rolled down upon her shoulders, and formed the most magnificent frame to her dazzling white dress. A pair of intellectual hazel eyes sparkled under the strongly arched eyebrows, and the softly swelling lips were well covered with a quiet smile. Occasionally Clara turned her eyes to where her father was sitting, and an impatient desire was expressed in her features, and this impatience was constantly increased when Don Joseph took up new papers and plunged again into his labors.

"The last Moorish war," said the financier to himself, shaking his head thoughtfully, "has again swallowed up large sums, and I know not yet how the expenses are to be exacted, so that the poor man or the indigent family may not suffer thereby. Don Juan constantly asks for money; but can I dare I permit that widows shall snatch away from the mouths of their children the bread which they are about to eat for their supper? Dare I look on when tax collectors rob the feeble aged of their bed, and consign them to repose on damp straw? No, no! even if I have to sacrifice this time a portion of my own fortune. What matters it? She," he added, softly, casting a furtive glance at Clara, "she is so easily satisfied; she is so very good."

At length Don Joseph rested his hands; and scarcely had Clara noticed this, when she cast her work on the sofa, and ran up to her father. Carelessly she threw her arms around Don Joseph's neck, saying, in a jesting, scolding tone:

"To-day again you have kept me waiting very long."

"Believe me, my good child," rejoined her father, pressing a kiss on her forehead, "I would gladly devote to you my whole time; it would be my most ardent wish to be able to busy and amuse myself with you from early morning till late in the evening; but you know well that I have no leisure; my hours are devoted to the country and to the promotion of its welfare; and you, Clara, must make confidants of solitary moments, and these, after all, are the most faithful friends. You seek them, and they meet you at once with open arms, and will keep your secrets better than any human bosom."

"But not more so than Estella?" asked Clara, smiling.

"Ah, Estella!" repeated Don Joseph; "but see, you remind me yourself that after all you are not lonely. You have still your Estella, your bosom friend, with whom—"

"And I am proud to possess such a friend," interrupted Clara.

"Because she is the king's daughter?" said Don Joseph in reply, looking at his child earnestly and searchingly.

"No," answered the maiden, proudly, "not because she is our sovereign's daughter, but because she possesses a large and noble heart, and recompenses my love with the purest attachment."

"Donna Estella is a noble being," said Don Joseph, "and if you esteem her for her internal worth, now only for the sake of this inward worth, which ennobles man and elevates him to the dignity of man, then am I too proud of your choice, Clara, and your father may esteem himself happy to possess a daughter who has a friend in Estella."

"Do you not remark," said Clara, a little more cheerfully than before, "how Estella gives me daily new proofs of her attachment? Do you not know that the Infanta endeavors to share the smallest enjoyments with me? Even this day she prepared a pleasant surprise for me."

Don Joseph appeared to be fully convinced of what his daughter told him; and when he at the last words of Clara looked at her in an inquiring manner, she said:

"As I was walking out this morning before the rising of the sun, as usual, with Estella, in the park, I perceived from the expression of her countenance that again something was pleasing her; she could scarcely wait the hour when we were to take our usual short ride by the river bank. Instead of the usual two horses, the servant brought two high-nettle Arabian steeds, both of a remarkable handsome black color, both equally tall, built alike, and surprisingly similar to each other."

"My father," said Estella, "had bought one of these animals for me, and I could not rest till our servants had found a second one, just like it, for you. They have succeeded, and now I have for the first time true joy in the possession of the brave animal, and the curious lookers-on will not be able to distinguish us any more one from the other. Only do not lift your veil, Clara, and then," added Estella, archly, "people will take me at last to be my Clara."

Don Joseph smiled.

"And really," continued Clara, her face suffused with a soft tinge of red, the reflection of the purest joy, "when we rode both of us closely veiled through the city, we heard of our delight how people disputed with one another as to which of us was the king's or the Jew's daughter."

"And the king?" asked Don Joseph.

"Is equally as good to me as he can be," answered Clara. "Whenever I come without you he asks how you are, and what his trusty servant is doing."

"May Heaven grant that the grace which the king bestows on me may be of permanent duration."

Clara was terrified, and said scarcely audibly, "Do you fear that the king—"

"I do not fear," replied Don Joseph, in a firm tone, "I have nothing to fear, for I believe that I act in strict accordance with God's will."

"What do mean, then, by the words you have just used concerning the steadiness of the king's grace, and especially the tone in which you uttered them? Ah, dear father, explain this to me. You know how weak and timid a girl I am, and—"

"Do you not know that I, the first officer of the state, am a Jew, a descendant of that people that is given up in all countries to contempt and derision?" asked Don Joseph, earnestly.

"But surely not here in Castile!" rejoined Clara.

"At this moment indeed not," answered Don Joseph; "nevertheless there are in our country rich men who regard me with sinister looks, and who cannot bear within them the thought that a Jew should stand so near to the king, and that his daughter should be the confidant of the Infanta."

"And if even there be such people," suggested Clara, "what can they effect against the sovereign will?"

"Nothing," replied Don Joseph, "if his will be an iron one; everything, if it is weak and yielding as is the king's. Don Juan is good, mild and noble; but equally as weak and changeable, and the unlimited favor which he bestows on me can—which Heaven forbid—be changed through means of an enemy's word into the bitterest hatred. This also disturbs me little; the king is a human being, just like you and me, as all other men are, and my thoughts revert to the fate of my people; and to the same extent that I have at present the opportunity of being of service to my brothers in religion, to raise them in the estimation of Christians, and to secure their future well-being in this country, must the blow be terrible for them, which the disfavor of the king might suddenly inflict on them: one single hour of ill-humor would destroy what I and my friends have achieved in years of labor. And precisely in those moments wherein he overloads me with evidences of his favor, precisely then I cannot ward off certain anticipations and—"

While saying this, the door opened, and Juanna, Clara's tire-woman, entered.

"What is the matter?" asked the young lady to whom the interruption was disagreeable.

"What do you want, Juanna?"

"O, donna Clara," answered the servant, "a poor woman, who desires to speak with your father, is waiting without."

"With me?" asked Don Joseph, "then let her enter."

"But she looks so very dirty, so—I wanted to keep her away, but she avowed that she would lie down in front of the railing at the door, that you must needs see her in the morning."

"At length I had compassion."

"Then let her come in," ordered Don Joseph, a little displeased at the tire-woman's loquacity.

Juanna left the apartment, and soon thereafter stood in the foreground of this magnificent room a female figure, who exhibited all the signs of earthly sufferings, of poverty, of sickness and want. On each side a child held fast to her clothes, and in her arms she bore an infant.

"What do you want here?" asked Don Joseph, in an amiable, friendly tone, of the poor woman.

"My life and that of my poor children!" exclaimed the woman, who appeared till now to have opposed, as it were, an iron dam against the stormy emotions of her spirit.

"What ails you, woman?" inquired Don Joseph, terrified at her passionate exclamations.

"Are you a criminal?"

"A criminal!" repeated the woman after him with a smile, taking a step nearer to him. "No, I am no criminal, but—I could, I must become one."

"Do explain yourself," said Joseph ben Ephraim. "I must know your misfortune before I can relieve it."

"Your servants want to seize my goods!" said the woman thereupon in a terribly collected tone. "No, not so; they have deprived me already of my last possession, which they could possibly drag away, and to-day Gonzalo Martinez had me threatened with the sale of my cottage, if I do not pay the taxes before the setting of the sun."

"What do you say?" exclaimed Don Joseph, and a slight redness overspread his noble face.

"Gonzalo Martinez?"

"Even so," rejoined the woman, bitterly. "He threatens to sell my cottage, the only thing my husband has left me, who has met his death in the war for his country."

Joseph ben Ephraim walked up and down the apartment several times with long strides, and turned his looks often toward Clara, who had in the meanwhile resumed the work which she had laid down, but remained an attentive witness of the scene exhibited before her.

"This now is the third—no, the fourth time," said Joseph, in a low voice to himself, "that such complaints have come to my ears; this must be prevented hereafter. For what use do I sacrifice every year a considerable portion of my wealth? It is in order to let it flow into the pockets of faithless servants!"

He then turned suddenly toward the woman, and asked her name. Don Joseph next seated himself before his desk and wrote a few words. He gave the paper to the woman with these words:

"This writing will protect you against all violence, my good woman. When the servants of Gonzalo come to you, hand them this, and they will not dare to touch your property; and permit me to let it be my care that you shall recover whatever they have taken from you. I only beg you to lay a bribe upon your tongue, speak nothing good of me, and nothing evil of others; or the reverse; act as though nothing had occurred, and you shall, in common with all others who are oppressed, have a support in me so long as I shall be able," he added, in a whisper.

The woman pocketed the order, and wanted to seize the hand of the generous man to cover it with her kisses. But Don Joseph said, forbidding it:

"Go to, go, may God protect you farther."

The servants came duly to the widow, and carried the order of Don Joseph to their master, Gonzalo, who read it, and turned pale; at the same time a command was delivered to him to repair to his superior, Joseph ben Ephraim.

The evening was considerably advanced when Gonzalo Martinez went to the king's treasurer. He was considering what words he should use to color his falsehood and dress up his submission.

"I will this time also forgive you the well-merited punishment," said Don Joseph, with decisive earnestness, "it shall be concealed from the king how you proceed toward his subjects; I will dismiss you from this place, unpunished, for I, too, ought not to have suffered myself to be deceived by you. But do this, Gonzalo, quit Seville, leave Castile, be a stranger to the country where true honor meets with protection, and where your viciousness must appear doubly black in the eyes of every child."

Gonzalo bent his head, like a humble servant. But in his bosom raged a storm, and the whole night scarcely sufficed to cogitate over all the plans which presented themselves as to the manner in which he could revenge himself on the Jew.

The words of her father had made a saddening impression on Clara. She recognized the truth which his expressions had contained, and she felt oppressed by the care, that what he dreaded might be fulfilled.

When a man's breast sighs under heavy anticipations of evil, when his view is shrouded by turbid phenomena, he nevertheless can find some thoughts which the heart can grasp with all the strength which God has imparted to it, and he seeks and finds new counsels and new hopes, which are capable again to lift up and to encourage the fearing, timid soul for a brief space of time. But the woman, who feels more strongly, and whose sensations are more violent, the woman, who sees and dreads darker clouds than the man, can only assist him to endure the cares and the pressing anxiety, and her soul takes refuge at the footstool of God. This was the case with Clara. Her father had already fallen asleep, and her waiting-woman may, for all we know, have already been indulging in golden dreams, when the maiden was still sitting in the cool garden, and endeavored to lighten her oppressed heart by pious prayer. Never had she felt her bosom so overburdened as this night; never had she discovered so greatly the blessing of a sincere prayer as in this hour. Strengthened and encouraged Clara now seized her lute, and sent forth soft sighing tones to the blue vault of heaven.

THE PASSOVER IN JERUSALEM.

A contemporary gives the following account of the observance of this festival in the Holy Land:

By the kindly offices of a friend we gained admission to the house of several Hebrew families on the night of the Passover. The same general order of things was observed in them all. A long table was arranged for the sacred meal in the centre of the chief room of the house, and both chamber and table were adorned according to the wealth and taste of the occupier. In the centre of the table was a basket containing unleavened bread. Dishes containing hard-boiled eggs and salads were scattered about, the salads representing the bitter herbs of old; and wine from the vineyards of Bethlehem, sweetened with raisins, were plentifully supplied. At sunset the entire family, old and young, gathered round the fragrant table, the men at one end and the women at the other, while the children occupied places between. In front of the male members of the family was set a platter containing a piece of roast lamb, usually a cutlet from the loin. Before the repast commenced the narrative of the exodus was read in Hebrew by one of the youngest sons, the patriarch of the group now and then interrupting, or answering questions, explanation of the words, or answering questions, which were proposed. The conclusion of the head of the family led the devotion, evening by reading some liturgical prayer. Then the feast commenced, at which only the males partook of the paschal lamb, while the women contented themselves with eggs and salad. At the conclusion of the repast the ancient Psalms of David were sung in their peculiar nasal fashion, which occupation often advances far into the night.

To us these Jews displayed courteous hospitality, and pressed upon us their unleavened bread and very excellent wine, and when, in passing from the very interesting scene, we asked an aged patriarch whether he still anticipated the advent of the Messiah, a ray of gladness lit up his furrowed face as he replied, "I am expecting his appearance every day." On the following Saturday—the Jewish Sabbath—we repaired at seven o'clock in the morning to the chief synagogue of the Jews in Jerusalem. During the previous night heavy showers had fallen, the "latter rain" of scripture. This had accumulated in the streets for want of drainage, until the huge pools of water and mire rendered locomotion a thing of difficulty. The water had even invaded the floor of the sanctuary, and while we were looking about for a resting-place within, we were politely invited to take seats on the raised platform which occupied the centre of the building. From this conspicuous position we commanded the entire assembly. On the area some six or seven hundred persons were squatting on benches, with their legs folded under them, the books of Moses or some Hebrew liturgy on their knees, their head covered (for the symbol of obedience in the East is the uncovering of the feet), and a thick veil over their faces, as a memorial of the veil worn by Moses when he descended from the Mount, and which reminded us of the language of the Apostle Paul, "that to this day when Moses is read the veil is upon their hearts." Behind thick lattice work, in a high pitched gallery, were to be dimly seen the female portion of the assembly, but to all appearances mere spectators of a formal and feeble service. On the platform near us sat the Chief Rabbi, who presided in the assembly, but what to us was specially interesting was the presence of a youth called up out of the assembly, as Jesus was at Nazareth, to read the Hebrew Scripture. This exercise concluded, the sacred roll was carried through every part of the edifice, that the worshippers might kiss the heaven-sent law before it was deposited in the archives by the ruler of the synagogue. A few liturgical prayers were then read or rather nasally intoned, by the Rabbi, to which responses were made in guttural boisterous tones. The teaching element was entirely wanting, and the worship appeared to us little more than the formal and punctilious performance of religious duty.

MESSRS. JACOBS, NEWMAN & CO., No. 6 Battery street, have succeeded in manufacturing hoops here, to which we would call special attention to, as they offer advantages over any hoops imported from the East or made there; their superiority lies in being made of a heavier material, and each skirt is made of one piece of wire, which in imported skirts are made of several pieces and is apt to break soon and lose their shape, whereas their skirts are warranted for beauty, strength and durability; they are able to offer them at a much lower price than any imported skirts in this market. Every skirt is stamped with the name of JACOBS, NEWMAN & CO., No. 6 Battery street, near Market.

Von meinen Lehren lernst du viel,
Ich lerne mehr von den Genossen,
Doch ward durch meine Schüler mir

Ein wenig lob' ich dich in's Angeficht, Denn ganzes Lob' sag ich dir nicht.

(Von unserm Berliner Correspondenten.)
Richard Wagner, der Judenfeind.

I.
Selten hat wohl eine Schmähschrift ein größeres Aufsehen in der ganzen gebildeten Welt hervorgerufen und eine gerechtere Entrüstung und mehr Widerwillen und Ekel gegen den Verfasser derselben erzeugt, als das neueste literarische Produkt des großen Meisters der sogenannten „Zukunftsmusik“ von Richard Wagner, das derselbe vor wenigen Wochen zu Leipzig hat erscheinen lassen. Was nur der offensbare Größenwahn und die maßlose Selbstverehrung und Eitelkeit einerseits und niedrige Leidenschaft und gemeine Gefinnung andererseits sich ausdenken können, findet sich in dieser Broschüre bis zum größten Extrem vertreten, und von solch offenbarem Blödsinn und von so viel Dokumenten geistiger Beschränktheit wimmelt diese Schrift, daß man sich überall erkundigt fragt: Kann das in der That ein Mensch mit gesundem Verstand geschrieben haben, und kann dieser Mensch wirklich ein Künstler und Komponist sein, der durch seine Schöpfungen die Herzen seiner Mitmenschen erheben und ihren Sinn veredeln und für alles Gute und Schöne empfänglich machen will? — Richard Wagner spricht — und das charakteristisch das ganze Nachwort — in dieser Schrift trotz ihres darauf gesetzten Titels nur zum kleinsten Theile von der Musik. Es ist die ganze Broschüre vielmehr ein Genterplag, worauf das gesammte Judenthum, alles und neues und keineswegs bloß die Deutschen, sondern alle Juden, wo sie nur auf Erden wohnen und eine Heimath, sei es neuerdings gefunden, sei es schon seit Jahrhunderten eine haben, verbrannt oder zerstückt, zerhackt und schließlich abgeschlachtet werden. Ja an den Lebenden allein kann sich der Spott des Herrn Wagner nach Judenfleisch gar nicht einmal sättigen. Da müssen auch die Todten herhalten. Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy, dieser musikalische Liebling der Deutschen und Engländer Nation, wird aus dem Grabe gerissen und seiner edelsten Theile beraubt, an Meyerbeer bleibt auch nicht ein Stückchen ganz und Heinrich Heine wird noch einmal geschunden; kurz es ist vollkommen wahr, was ein (christlicher) Schriftsteller in einem angesehenen Blatte über diese Broschüre sagt: „Seit den finsternen Zeiten des Mittelalters, etwa des 12. und 14. Jahrhunderts, wo man ernsthaft darüber disputierte und Bücher schrieb, ob die Juden wirklich Menschen seien oder nicht, ist mit einer solchen nackten Rohheit und mit einem solchen gelfen Blutdurst nicht die Ausrottung und Vernichtung der Juden geübt worden, als es hier in dieser Schrift, in der zweiten Hälfte des 19. Jahrhunderts von Herrn Wagner geschieht.“ Und dies ist in der That keineswegs als etwas Uebertriebenes hinzunehmen. Denn der christlich wüthende Zukunfts-musikant trifft allen Grundes von der „gemäßigten Auswertung des jersenden fremden (jüdischen) Elements, und ruft den Juden, um ihnen doch auch sein mitleidvolles Herz zu zeigen, den ganz richtigen Trost zu: „Möchten doch die Juden einsehen, daß das einzige Heil und die einzige Errettung für sie in dem Erlösungsmittel des Messias liegt, nämlich in der Selbstvernichtung;“ d. h. deutlich ausgedrückt etwa Folgendes: „O ihr Juden, wo ihr auch weilet, erkennet doch unser (Richard Wagners) Mitleid mit eurem Judenthum und unsere christliche Sanft- und Großmuth. Versammelt euch doch alleammt und allerorten vollständig mit Weibern und Töchtern, gekauft und ungelauft, mit Kind und Kegel, Jung und Alt, und Groß und Klein in Euren Tempeln und Synagogen, legt Prachfränge und Goldschmucke rings herum, wie helfen euch dabei in christlicher Liebe und zündet diese dann an; wir wollen draußen stehen und auf den Knien inbrünstig zum Himmel flehen um Euer Heil, und wenn dann der letzte Bart und der letzte Knochen von euch verbrannt sein wird, dann wollen wir Dank- und Loblieder singen, daß ihr errettet seid, und wollen Tränen der Rührung weinen und mit einem innig-aufjauchenden Dankgebet zu unserm Herrn Jesus Christus wollen wir gerufen die Wechselsche, die ihr auf uns habt, und wollen anschließend eure Schränke und eure Kneipen und mit eurem süßigen Geld, das wir darin finden, wollen wir uns in München im allerchristlichsten Exil Paläste bauen und in rein christlich-germanischer Zukunftsmusik, so wir alsdann darin komponiren werden, wollen wir den Hallel, der euch erfüllt hat, loben und preisen von Ewigkeit zu Ewigkeit, Amen!“ Der Reiz des „Judenthum“ wird uns ersaunt fragen, wie eine solche Schrift, wie Wagners Judenpaquill, welche nach dieser Schilderung dem Stempel der offenkundigen Berrücktheit an sich trägt, überhaupt einer ernsten Kritik oder gar Widerlegung hat würdig gefunden werden können. Der freundliche Leser muß aber bedenken, daß einmal der Verfasser objectiv betrachtet, ganz unabhängig ein bedeutendes Talent und eine hervorragende Erscheinung im Gebiet der Kunst ist (ein Talent, das merkwürdigerweise bis heute gerade unter den Juden seine meisten und eifrigsten Bewunderer gezählt hat) und daß sein unläutertes Verhältnis zu dem jungen Kaiserthum und die fabelhaften Geldunterstützungen der letzteren in jüngster Zeit seinen Dorn insbesondere in München ein größeres Relief verliehen haben, dann aber auch, daß nicht nur in den ungebildeten Schichten Deutschlands allein, nicht nur beim niedrigen und höchsten Pöbel, wo man als selbstverständliche Wahrheit hinwegsieht, sondern selbst in den besten und gebildetsten Mittelkreisen im lieben Deutschland Judenthum und Judenwuth noch genug vorhanden sind, auf deren Aufschwung mit einer wahrhaft giftigen Rastlosigkeit die Schrift von Wagner berechnet ist. Wagner macht in seinem Ekel die Juden — und er nimmt keinen einzigen Juden, nicht einmal die getauften Juden, auch nicht die von jüdischen Eltern geborenen Christen davon aus — in ihrer äußerlichen Erscheinung und in allen ihren geistigen Eigenschaften zu einer solchen bodenlosen Carrikatur, daß sie danach zu urtheilen überhaupt gar nichts Menschenthümliches mehr an sich haben. „Nie verirrte sich“ — so sagt, wir zitiren wörtlich, Richard Wagner — „ein Jude auf die theatralische Bühne. — Wir können und auf der Bühne keinen antiken oder modernen Charakter, sei es ein Held oder ein Liebesknecht, von einem Juden dargestellt denken, ohne unwillkürlich das bis zur Völlerei haltende Angelegene einer solchen Vorstellung zu empfinden. Dies ist sehr wichtig: einen Menschen, dessen Erscheinung wir zu künstlerischer Kundgebung nicht in dieser oder jener Persönlichkeit, sondern allgemein seiner Gestaltung nach, für unfähig halten müssen, dürfen wir zur künstlerischen Aeußerung seines Wesens überhaupt ebenfalls nicht für befähigt halten.“ Nun, was sagen wohl die Amerikaner, die erst neuerdings Gelegenheit gehabt haben, den größten Schauspielers der Gegenwart, Bogumil Dabrowski, einen Juden, auf der Bühne zu sehen und zu bewundern, zu diesem also offenkundigen Blödsinn des fanatischen Zukunfts-musikanten. Was sagen alle diejenigen dazu, die in der „Gartenlaube“ und in andern in- und ausländischen Journalen die Erscheinung und das Auftreten eines Dessor, Sonnenhal, Levinski, oder einer Pauline Lucca, Rachel, Bettelheim und Sonstigen die sämtlichen Juden sind oder waren, abgebildet und geschildert gesehen und gelesen haben. — Doch dies ist in Inhalt und Form nur die mildeste Stelle des Wagnerschen Schmähschreibens. Es kommen Stellen von so gemeiner Rohheit und widerlicher Ausdrucksweise in seiner Eitelkeit vor, daß wir Anstand nehmen, die fraglichen anzuführen.

— Von dem fälschlich verordneten Componisten Berlioz erzählt man folgende Anekdote: Berlioz war 1824 Studiosus der Medizin, aber schon damals wissenschaftlicher Musiker und angeblicher Componist. Der „Freischütz“, dessen Text von Carl Blumel, dem fälschlich „französisch“ war (der Webermann überlegte: „Sei mir gegrüßt, gefegneter des Herrn“ mit: „Comment vous portez-vous Monsieur“), entzündete durch seine wunderbare Melodie die ganze Schule der Pariser Musiker, die den deutschen Romantiker „Hammerverwandt“ fand, begehrte aber beständige Opposition bei den „Philistinen“, die von der hässlichen Musik nichts wissen wollten. Berlioz ging jeden Abend ins Parterre, wenn der Freischütz gegeben wurde, und applaudirte aus Leidenschaft. Ein kluger Gewürztrinker aber, der auch jeden Abend hineinging, freilich aus ganz anderen Motiven, züchte wie verdrückt und fiel in einem fort: Nieder mit dem deutschen Unfinn! Man kann sich denken, wie der junge entzündliche Sektor sich ärgerte. Er schwor dem biden Boitier Rache, und wie sollte er sie einbringen! Sie ahnen's wahrhaftig nicht, selbst wenn Sie sich als Helfschin etablieren. Der Dile geriet in schlechte Vermögensumstände und ward krank. — Der arme und krank ist, kommt ins Hospital, so auch unser Gewürztrinker. Berlioz war Interner oder Internat in diesem Hospital und sein alter musikalischer Gegner stand ihm unter den Händen. Der junge Medizinal wußte sich — sein Ekel zu verschaffen und schenkte daselbst der Oper, wo es in Wolfschulz-Exercitien immer noch mispült, wenn Wagners Weisthurm gegeben wird. — So muß der Beräcker deutscher Musik bis zum jüngsten Gerichte ihr unterthan sein — schimmer ist es noch nie einem langjährigen Parterrebesucher ergangen! Der Pariser „Figaro“ erzählt einen hübschen Zug aus den letzten Augenblicken Berlioz! Kurz bevor der Musiker verschied, sagte er lächelnd: „Nun wird man wohl auch meine Sachen auf-führen.“

Berlin. — Für die aus Rußland kommenden polnischen Juden, welche aus ihrem unglücklichen Pseudo-Vaterlande nach hier emigriren sind, um von der Mühseligkeit ihrer jüdischen Sklaven-Glaubensgenossen zu profitieren, wird ein Asyl errichtet, in welchem für ihre Religion, genügende Nahrung und anderweitige Bedürfnisse Sorge getragen werden soll. Der Hauptzweck aber besteht darin, die Aufgenommenen sich verpflichten, nach Amerika auszuwandern, um dort einer neuen und anständigen Lebensweise weitergegeben zu werden. Die Ueberfahrtskosten werden durch ein Banknoten-haus an Ort und Stelle, die ersten Mittel zum weiteren Fortkommen in der neuen Heimath durch Anweisung auf dortige Banknotenbäuer gezahlt. Das provisorische Komitee dieses Vereins besteht aus namhaften Berliner Persönlichkeiten, und das es auch ein Mittel zur Ausübung des Unter-nemmens nicht fehlt, so wird daselbst in nächster Zeit zur Verwirklichung gelangen.

Plan n. 30. März. — Der Rabbinat Kandidat Herr Dr. Adolph Lewin aus Breslau, derselbe, von welchem diese Zeitung in einem Exclusion-Artikel vor einiger Zeit die Mittheilung brachte, daß er der Erwerber eines in jüdisch-theologischen Seminars zu Breslau durch ein Vermächtniß fundirten Preises für eine von ihm geleistete Preischrift gewesen und während des gegenwärtigen Jahres zum Besuch seiner Eltern hier verweilt, brachte auf Veranlassung des Herrn Rabbiners Caro und des Gemeindevorstandes am 28. d. M. in der hiesigen Synagoge über Exodus Cap. 12. V. 3. und 4. Er erläuterte unter Zugrundelegung dieser Textorte das Wesen des Familien-, Gemein- und Volksebens und löste seine Aufgabe sowohl der Form als auch dem Inhalte nach vortrefflich.

Wien. (Uebertretung zum Judenthume.) Vor wenigen Wochen trat hier ein Namensvetter des berühmten Märtyrers von Konstanz, Johannes Fuß, von Geburi Kalkofski, zum Judenthume über. THE LAW OF NEWSPAPERS.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If subscribers wish their papers discontinued, publishers may continue to send them until all charges are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office or place to which they are sent, they are held responsible until they settle their bills and give notice to discontinue them.
4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible. Notices should always be given of removal.
5. The courts have decided that refusing to take a paper or perceiving it from the office, or removing and leaving it uncollected, is "prima facie" evidence of intentional refusal. Postmasters would oblige, by a strict fulfillment of the regulations requiring them to notify publishers, once in three months, of papers not taken from their office by subscribers.
6. Under the law of Congress papers are not charged postage in the country in which they are published.

Country patrons will oblige by remitting us their subscriptions now due; and those who may happen to come to the city, will favor us much by calling at our office, 420 MONTGOMERY STREET, and settling their accounts.

GOD EVER PRESENT.

"Know before whom thou standest." These are precious words, dear reader—words that should be always present to your mind, and treasured up in your heart. They point out to you the way to eternal happiness. Consider at all times that you are, in the presence of that merciful but Almighty being, your Heavenly Father; that, however securely you may hide yourself from the gaze of the world, the watchful eye of God is always upon you.

Awfully sublime, indeed, is the idea that the same Being who gave existence to the wonderful universe, that Being whose voice we hear in the terrible tempest, that Being whose power we see displayed in the heavings of the boundless ocean, whose splendor we see reflected in the blazing sun, should yet deign to occupy Himself with us, the insignificant inhabitants of the earth—themselves but an insignificant atom in the regions of space. Could there be a greater claim on our gratitude than the fostering care and constant solicitude of Providence, whose very attributes the mind of man cannot grasp?

We all of us cannot be otherwise than conscious of the greatness of our obligations to that Providence. And yet, when supposed self-interest, or our evil passions prompt us to commit an evil action, an action which we should shrink from exposing to the eyes of the world, we endeavor to remove ourselves from the gaze of our fellow-creatures, and then, like the foolish bird, that shuts its eyes in order to escape some threatening danger, we think ourselves secure from the consequent punishment of our sin.

Oh, how contemptible, how utterly futile is such conduct. Neither oaken doors, nor thick brick walls can conceal us or our actions from the sight of our Maker; for how can we hide anything from Him, who knows our innermost secret thoughts. It is true we may avoid the arm of the law, we may escape the vengeance of our fellow-men, but retribution from the Almighty—never.

We sometimes see the wicked man prosper, see him amass wealth exalted from the widow and the fatherless, the weak and the unprotected; we sometimes see him live a life of apparent happiness and joy. We ask ourselves ought this to be? Is this right? Is this just? We, in our short-sightedness, presumptuously begin to doubt the justice of God. But the Almighty works in secret ways, the hand of Providence may not overtake the sinner immediately; God is long suffering and merciful.

Not the less certainly, however, will the wicked man receive his just deserts, if he do not repent in time. We commit a sin, and because we are not immediately struck down by fire from heaven, because we are not immediately prostrated by disease, because we can walk as well, because we feel as vigorous, as before, we think we can sin with impunity. O, fatal mistake. We sin again, and again, our whole life almost becomes a continuous career of sin. Our presumption thus turns God's long enduring mercy into a fearful curse—a curse which alights on our own heads—for if the forbearance of God is long enduring, his vengeance is equally anering. Punishment may not overtake us for a long time; it may, even, not overtake us in this world. It may please God to snatch us away from earth in the midst of our sinful course. What can we hope for in such a case? Not a life of bliss. No, an existence of shame and woe, terrible to contemplate—how much more terrible to suffer!

Think, then, what we risk when we sin against God. Perhaps to gain some momentary gratification, to attain some fleeting enjoyment, we forfeit eternal happiness. Remember then, at all times, that you are in the presence of the King of kings, and you will not, you cannot sin.

You, who make light of the precepts of the Almighty, you, who seem by your actions to doubt God's Providence, go out into the fields at the beautiful spring time, when nature again begins to assume her holiday attire, when new life is infused into every living thing. Watch the embryo plant starting into life. See how unfailingly the earth is clothed with verdure. Green shoots spring forth from every tree; the birds burst forth into joyous song; the air is peopled with myriads of living creatures, each possessing and enjoying a separate existence. Consider all this, and consider who it is that sets all this wonderful machinery of nature in motion. Consider that it is that very God whom you seem to defy every time you sin. Remember what wonders He is constantly working for your benefit. How can you, then, make such a shamefully ungrateful return for all the blessings that the Almighty showers down upon you?

You will perhaps say, "O that I lived in the beautiful country! Then indeed I could adore the Almighty, for I should see His kindness and mercy in every tender little plant; but here, cramped up in the narrow streets I can see nothing of the wonderful works of nature; at most I can but see a narrow patch of sky." You cannot see the works of God! Why? daily, hourly, the greatest miracle is taking place in this metropolis. Day after day, does the Almighty provide with never-failing, bountiful hand, food to fill the mouths of the three million hungry souls dwelling in this city. Is not this a wonder of wonders? Is not this a sufficient claim on our gratitude? For what should we do, were the fostering care and solicitude of Providence to be withheld from us for a moment? We should all, without exception, the poor with the rich, perish. We are all but weak mortals, dependent on the bounty of God for every moment of our existence.

Let us, then, always hold the mercy and kindness of the Almighty before our eyes. Let us remember that we owe the continuance of our life to the long-suffering and forbearance of our Maker. Let our actions always be such as can bear the most rigid scrutiny, for we know not how soon we may be removed from earth and summoned before God's Throne, to be dealt with according to our actions. Woe to him who is deprived of life whilst in the very midst of sin!

How few of us are there who are really mindful of the ever-existing awful presence of Almighty God! How often do we approach the Almighty in prayer, thinking of anything but of the importance of the petition we are laying before Him. Alas! our prayers are often nothing but senseless lip-service. We seem to think that if we allow a certain number of set words to come forth from our mouth, we have done our duty toward our God. I ask you, dear friends, of what avail can such meaningless utterances be? If you had a petition to lay before an earthly prince, would you pronounce your request with vacant mien and absent mind? Would you not rather put your whole soul into the words you utter? And yet when you stand before the King of kings, when you offer up a prayer to your God—a prayer for your very existence, a prayer that those whom you cherish and love most on earth, may be blessed, your mind is, perhaps, wandering away to the consideration of some trivial matter, and too often, I fear, occupied with wicked thoughts. Better, far better, offer up no prayers to the Almighty, than mock His presence by such hypocrisy.

"The Lord God is nigh unto all them that call upon Him—to all that call upon Him in truth." But requires of us to pour out our soul in heartfelt prayer, to acknowledge our shortcomings and pray for forgiveness in a contrite and humble spirit, and to evidence by our actions our desire to do that which is right in His eyes.

Does not the workman labor with redoubled energy when he knows that the eye of his master is upon him? We know that the eye of our heavenly Master is always upon us, and yet we do not work as zealously for Him as the laborer does for his weekly hire.

Consider how munificent are the wages that the Almighty Master gives us. And what is the labor he requires of us? He only asks us to abstain from doing evil, and to do all the good that lies in our power. Whatever the gifts with which he may have blessed us, they cannot be considered as our own, but only as entrusted to us by Him to be employed for the advantage of our fellow-creatures, and the consequent welfare of our soul.

If, then, it has pleased God to favor us with the blessing of health, it is our duty to put it to the best use whilst we have it, for we know not how soon we may be deprived of it. It is probable that all of us have such intentions, but alas, we too often defer their execution until we are thrown on a bed of sickness and thus rendered incapable of anything else but attempting to grapple with distemper. Indeed, when we reflect upon how many years of health we have enjoyed, and how little of this time we have laid out for the honor of God, and the benefit of our fellow creatures, and on the contrary, how often we must have offended the Almighty, how often we have wasted the precious moments of our life in vain follies or sinful pleasures, we cannot but acknowledge the continuance of our life as the greatest instance of God's merciful forbearance, as well as the greatest motive to our gratitude and obedience.

But oh, let us not abuse that forbearance, let us not try it to the utmost, let us not suppose that it will endure forever. A day of reckoning may break upon us at any time. How awful that day, if we are unprepared for it, if we have refused to see God's Majesty in all that surrounds us, and have gone astray from the right path.

But how joyful, how glorious that day, if ever conscious of the presence of our Creator, we have sedulously avoided evil and made the best use of our gifts, be they what they may; we shall then be blessed with the delightful sense of having fulfilled our duties on earth to the best of our ability; and we shall be able to look forward with confidence to a time of indescribable bliss, when we shall stand before our Maker to receive the reward of our actions.

MASTER LOUIS SCHMIDT'S FAREWELL CONCERT.
The Testimonial Concert tendered to the young California violin virtuoso, Master Schmidt, prior to his departure for Europe, will come off at Platt's Hall to-night. The programme will consist of: Allegro Andante, of the Grand Septuor, in D minor, by Herold, Kahne, Friedberg, Schlotte, etc.; Song, The Vagabond, by W. Campbell; Seventh Air, Varié, by Master Louis Schmidt; Serenade (Piano) 'Cello, Organ, and Violin accompaniment, by Mrs. Marguerite; Solo (French Horn) Sinner's Song, from Massanello, by Ernest Schlotte; Grand Trio, d'un Pensiero (Sonnambula), by Mrs. Mariner; Sig. O. Morley, W. Campbell; Minuet and Finale of the Grand Septuor in D minor, by Herold, Kahne, Friedberg, Schlotte; Ah Si, Bien Mio (Trovatore), by Signor Carmine Morley; Fantasia Lombardi, by Master Louis Schmidt; Duet, See the Pale Moon, by Mrs. Mariner and W. Campbell; Meditation, Piano, Organ, Oboe, 'Cello, and Violin, by Herold, Kahne, Friedberg, Stohr and Schmidt.

NEW I. O. B. B. LODGE.—On Wednesday evening last, the I. O. B. B. Lodge Golden Gate was installed with the usual ceremonies at the B. B. Hall. At the close of the ceremonies the members of the Grand Lodge were invited to attend a banquet, which came off with great éclat at Warshaw's Hotel, on Market street. The regular meetings of Golden Gate Lodge will be held every Sunday afternoon. The following is the list of the officers elected for the first term: Jacob Gans, Jr., President; B. L. Riersbach, Vice-President; Isidor M. J. Leszynski, Secretary; Ph. Stone, Financial Secretary; S. H. Schocken, Treasurer; S. Wolf, Monitor; S. Silver, Assistant Monitor; A. Lippman, Warden; G. Bearwald, Guardian.

SACRAMENTO FARM HOMESTEAD.—At a meeting of the members of this homestead, on Wednesday evening last, the three gentlemen, Messrs. Gens, Winn, Gen. Redington, and Calvin Brown, selected by the shareholders of the above Association to report upon the condition of the land of the Norris Ranch, gave a report of their research. They found the land very valuable for agricultural purposes, and for 2,000 acres bottom land and the wood standing on the ranch, $50,000 more than the purchase money could be realized. The full report of the above-named gentlemen will be published in our next.

THE B. B. PICNIC.—The long expected picnic given by the B. B. Literary and Social Circle, in aid of their Library, will come off on Sunday next at the Schuetzen Park, Alameda. The Committee of Arrangements have left nothing undone which can add to the comfort or pleasure of all participants. Prizes will be awarded to the successful competitors in various games, and we are requested by the President of the Circle to state that Mr. Peixotto will deliver a lecture. The first boat will leave at 9 A. M.

THE LAST SPIKE.—The last tie of the Pacific Railroad, which will be laid on Saturday next, was manufactured in this city by Messrs. Strable & Hughes. It is of highly polished California laurel wood, bearing a silver plate with appropriate inscriptions. The spike with which this tie is to be fastened is of solid gold, and weighs about seventeen ounces. It was also manufactured in this city, and was presented by Mr. David Hewes, the pioneer railroad man of the coast.

JEWISH AFFAIRS IN ALASKA.—From a friend, Mr. L. Kaplan who resides in Sitka, Alaska, and is now on a visit to this city, we have received the following notice about our co-religionists in that town: There are fourteen Jewish residents, among whom are four families; last Pesach they had Matzoths sent them from this city, and kept a Zeider. They are all well off, and intend shortly to organize a congregation.

On Saturday next, May 8th, the last railroad tie will be laid, and the railroad will stretch its iron arms from the shore of the Atlantic to the Pacific. The great event will be celebrated in a becoming manner in this city as well as Sacramento, and in some of the principal Eastern cities. All Societies are requested by the Grand Marshal of the occasion, A. P. Stanford, to join the procession.

SACRAMENTO.—The Congregation B'nai Israel, at a meeting recently held, elected the following officers: President, L. Elkus; Vice-presidents, N. M. Jacobs; Secretary, S. Z. Kind; Treasurer, G. Haines. Trustees—M. Friedlander, M. Wilson and B. Denney. School Directors—P. Franklin, J. Borries, and S. Moore.

MADAME WILLY DE ROTHSCHILD has sent a splendid medallion to Mlle Nilsson, and an alms of her musical compositions, which the Swedish diva especially admires. In the center of the jewel is a nightingale, and below, in the brilliant gems, the name of "Christine Nilsson."

IN AID OF THE SUFFERERS.—A grand concert and ball, in aid of the sufferers in Eastern Prussia, will come off, under the auspices of the A. J. O. Kesher Shol Barsel, on Monday evening, May 17th, at Pacific Hall, California Theatre Building.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

FRANCE.—In the exhibition of paintings, lately held in Algiers, there were two fine works by M. Abraham Mohaty, a Jewish native, and a pupil it is said, of Horace Vernet. M. Hinton, colonel of engineers, stationed at Martinique has been promoted to the grade of Officer of the Legion of Honor. By a decree of the Minister of Public Instruction, M. Falk, director of the Jewish school at Oran, has been nominated officer of the academy.

Since the appointment of M. Weil as Rabbi at Altkirch, in 1861, he has frequently applied to the authorities of the college of that town, to be permitted to deliver a course of religious instruction gratuitously. The principal, who is a clergyman, opposed this request. This year a lay principal has been appointed, through whose interest M. Weil has been nominated Jewish Almoner of the Jewish college, and will in future receive a stipulated salary. We mentioned lately that M. Ad. Oremieux has been elected sovereign grand master of the Scottish rite of Free Masonry. This elevation is owing to the resignation of the honorable post by M. Allegri, who has been appointed honorary sovereign grand master for life, and also member of the supreme council.

The serious difficulties which have arisen between the Corps Legislatif and the Prefecture of the Seine concerning the contract made with the Credit Foncier have had the effect of putting a stop for the time to the erection of municipal edifices. The works in connection with the new Jewish Temple in Paris are at present suspended, and it would be impossible to fortify when the completion of the building may be reasonably expected.

AUSTRIA.—The Emperor has decorated Herr Joseph Lippman, with the knightly order of the Iron Crown, third class; and has granted him permission to assume the surname of "Von Lissingen."—Israelite. The government has granted Doctor Kempf an annual pension of 840 florins in recognition of his eminent services in connection with the University of Prague.

M. Leo Hollender, a candidate for the forthcoming Hungarian Parliament, for the Comitat of Sarone. He opposes the Ruthenian Dobransky, and there is little doubt of his success. The election of Deputies to the Hungarian Diet, took place in Pesth, on the 9th and 20th ult. The candidates returned are M. Deak and M. Wahrman. Jew, and member of the Diet party, M. M. Vidacs, Osernatow and J. Kall, members of the Opposition.

A brother of the late Admiral Napier lately fell in love with a very beautiful, but poor Jewish girl of Prague. On account of the difficulties which would have attended the marriage in that city, he betook himself to Heidelberg, where the more obliging authorities offered no opposition to the union. Archives Israelites. An aged man lately called on Dr. Lowenstein, Rabbi of Lemberg, stating his desire to return to the fold of Judaism. Forty-one years ago he had been baptized, and had since lived as a Christian. His wife and children are of that faith, and to them he has made over the bulk of his property, saving for himself sufficient only to enable him just to subsist. Osten.

The committee charged with the erection of the Rothschild Hospital in Vienna, have not yet fixed upon a site for the proposed institution. Many plots of land have been offered to them, but they are not satisfied with any that they have as yet come under their notice. In the hope of one day having a similar institution in our midst, it will be interesting to watch the gradual development of this charity.

PRUSSIA.—Our co-religionists of Memel have issued an appeal to their "Christian brethren," on behalf of the famine-stricken Jews of the Russian frontier.

According to recent statistics there are to be found in advanced educational institutions of the older portion of Prussia, about 70 per cent. of Catholics, 20 per cent. Catholics, and of Protestants, 22 per cent. The entire population about 8 per cent. Jews. Protestants, 38 per cent. consists of 60 per cent. Jews, 2 per cent. Catholics, and hardly 2 per cent. Jews. One pupil receives the higher instruction for every 243 Protestants, one for every 462 Catholics, and one for every 53 Jews.

SPAIN.—The following are the clauses of the new constitution which refer to the religious liberty. It will be seen therefrom that the mode of solving the religious question is all that could be expected, considering the great hold Catholicism still has over the people. Whilst it is still simple toleration, it must be born in mind that it is a great step in advance for Spain, and it is confidently believed not the last she will make in favor of religious freedom: "Art. 20. The nation undertakes to maintain the worship and ministers of the Catholic religion." Art. 21. The public and private exercise of any other worship remains guaranteed to all foreigners resident in Spain without limitations that the universal rules of morality and of right. If any Spaniards profess any religion other than Catholic, all the dispositions of the foregoing paragraph are applicable to them. Jewish Record.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—"Our American Cousin" was presented in this theatre for the first time on Tuesday evening last, the occasion being the benefit of the favorite comedian, Mr. Raymond, who appeared in the character of Asa Trenchard, and achieved therein great applause. He was called before the curtain twice, and made a neat little speech, thanking the audience for the kindness toward him. "Lion" was given as an afterpiece.

WILSON'S CIRCUS.—The public has been crowding nightly the mammoth canvas tent on Jackson street, where one of the very best circus performances we ever had the pleasure of witnessing comes off nightly. The thrilling performance with the lions is alone worth the price of admittance. On Saturday afternoon positively the last grand matinee will come off. Harry Jackson is immense as clown.

MAQUIRE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Johnny Mack has joined the Star Minstrel Troupe at this theatre, which can boast now to possess the three best comedians in their line in the United States. Nightly the house is crowded with a select audience. On Saturday afternoon a grand matinee will take place.

The net proceeds of the twentieth annual ball given by the First Hebrew Benevolent Society, at the Mechanic's Pavilion, a few weeks since, amounted to $2,892.

OUR MANUFACTURING BUSINESS.—Among the different manufactories in this city the candy manufactories take a prominent place. Messrs. Schroeder & Albrecht, Nos. 418 and 420 Clay street, have one of the largest candy manufactories on this coast. They are also agents for the sale of J. M. Wiedeman's celebrated Crystals de Paris, or Parisian Lemonade, a deliciously refreshing summer beverage, manufactured by Schroeder, Albrecht & Wiedeman, 113 K street, between Fourth and Fifth, Sacramento.

PHOTOGRAPHING.—We verily believe that Messrs. Bradley & Rulofson are entitled not only to the confidence, but to the gratitude of this entire community for the many improvements made in the art of Photographing. They are pre-eminently leaders of the art in San Francisco. Go and see their "Rustic" and "Marine" Photographs. If you want a good picture, go to Bradley & Rulofson's.

THE SALE OF THE TIDE LANDS.—Messrs. Talbot & Leet, the State Auctioneers, who will sell 99 full blocks and 46 fractional blocks of tide lands, on Wednesday, June 2d, have established themselves in the real estate business at 526 California street. Mr. Leet is well known as a prominent merchant and State Senator from Placer, and Mr. Talbot has, for many years, been in the real estate business in Sacramento. Our readers can be assured that all business entrusted to them will be attended to with the greatest care and promptness.

It meets the eye of a head of a family who has not his life insured, we wish him to consider that he is doing wrong toward his beloved ones if he hesitates even a day about taking out a life policy. The Equitable Life Insurance Company is one of the most substantial, as well as the most profitable, to insure in the United States. Messrs. Miller & Garland, 420 Montgomery street, are the general agents for the Pacific coast.

The ladies in New York, and other principal cities in the East, are especially well pleased with the completion of the great work of the age the Pacific Railroad; for now they will be able to order their cloaks direct from the eminent Cloak House of Sullivan & Co., No. 14 Montgomery street, and receive them in a few weeks. The ladies in New York declare that there are no cloaks in that city which can compare in beauty with those manufactured by the above-mentioned firm.

The most prominent manufacturers and dealers in hoops on the Pacific coast are, most undoubtedly, Messrs. Jacobus & Newman, No. 8 Battery street, near Market. Having great facilities, they are enabled to supply retail dealers at most advantageous terms, and if purchasers of hoops will consult their own interest they ought surely, buy of none other than the above-mentioned firm.

DESIRABLE PROPERTY.—While calling the attention to the very desirable property advertised for sale in another column, by Messrs. Klopstein & Co., No. 434 Montgomery street, we would recommend to all of our readers having transactions in real estate, to patronize the above named firm, composed of gentlemen of the highest standing in our city.

TO FARMERS.—It is of the utmost necessity to have always a medicine in the house which will prove efficient to all its flesh is heir to. As such none can compare with Wolfes' Aromatic Schiedam Schnapps, which has an established name in Europe and America, as the best medicine of the age.

Deutsches Theater.—Nach einer Pause von mehreren Monaten findet heute wieder eine Vorstellung im Alhambra Theater, eines der schönsten Theatergebäude am fliegigen Plage statt, und kommt Bencty Schauspiel, "Matthias" zur Aufführung. Unter den Mitwirkenden befinden sich die besten Kräfte biesiger Bühne, und wird auch von Seiten des Unternehmens alles aufgegeben werden, um den Ansprüchen des Publikums gerecht zu werden. Wir hoffen demnach, ein recht volles Haus zu sehen.

Deutsche Unterstüßungs-Gesellschaft.—Das erste Malifest obiger Gesellschaft findet am Sonntag und Montag, den 23. und 24. Mai, in Saale Park statt. Da die Feste dieser Gesellschaft sich hinsichtlich Vergnügungen und Gemüthsruhe stets vor allen andern vortheilhaft ausgezeichnet haben, und auch ein wohlthätiger Zweck dabei verbunden ist, so hoffen wir, daß sich unsere deutsche Bevölkerung recht zahlreich dabei betheiligen wird.

Schützenfest.—Das erste Schützenfest des San Francisco Schützen-Vereins findet am Sonntag und Montag, den 16. und 17. Mai, im Schützen-Park zu Alameda, statt. Das Programm ist sehr reichhaltig, und scheint überhaupt, nach den Vorbereitungen zu schließen, dieses das großartigste Fest der Saison zu werden.

NEW YORK.—The celebrated German tragedienne, Mlle. Fanny Janaschek, played at the Academy of Music on Saturday, May 1st, Moenthal's Deborah (Leah the Forsaken), for the benefit of the Hebrew free school. A crowded house witnessed the performance, which was given in an excellent style.

THE NEW MONTGOMERY STREET SALE.—Over $550,000 worth of lots on the above street were sold yesterday, by Messrs. Maurice, Dore & Co. The large hall of Merchants' Exchange was crowded to its utmost during the sale.

The well known Mayrich Bros. have withdrawn from the firm of Engelbrecht & Mayrich Bros., and have reopened a new business at the corner of Battery and Clay. All kinds of cigars and tobacco by wholesale at liberal rates.

Candys of every description for sale at lowest rates, at the California Candy Factory, of Schroeder & Albrecht, No. 418 and 420 Clay street.

PACIFIC RAILROAD
CELEBRATION.

ALL SOCIETIES AND ORGANIZATIONS desiring to participate in the Celebration of the Completion of the Pacific Railroad are respectfully requested to notify the Grand Marshal, at his office, No. 314 California street, TODAY.

Special Invitations will be sent to each Society as soon as they can be issued, but as the time is so short it is hoped that every organization will at once report to the Grand Marshal, in order that they may be assigned a proper place in the line.

A. P. STANFORD, Grand Marshal.
Per CHAS. L. WINGERS, Aid.

To the Citizens of San Francisco

At no time in the history of our State has there occurred an event which so justly calls for a general and enthusiastic Celebration as the completion of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad. It is the great event of the age, and it is just and proper that all classes of our citizens should join in celebrating the completion of an enterprise which unites the Atlantic and Pacific by bonds of iron, and places San Francisco among the most important cities of the world.

It is scarcely necessary that I should urge upon my fellow-citizens the importance of celebrating such an event in a becoming manner, and I therefore respectfully call upon the citizens of San Francisco individually, as well as upon all societies and organizations in this city and the surrounding country, to come forward and make the Celebration a success in every respect.

The day of Celebration has been set for SATURDAY. Communications should be addressed to the Grand Marshal, at his office, No. 314 California street.

A. P. STANFORD, Grand Marshal.

It fronts about 700 feet on Piedmont Way, the most direct approach to the University from Oakland. For picturesqueness of view, fertility of soil, salubrity of climate, and advantages of drainage (the land sloping gently toward the Bay) this property is unequalled by any Oakland property ever offered upon the Homestead plan. We can confidently recommend this enterprise to our friends as being eminently worthy of their attention.

THE SUMMIT REACHED AT LAST!
IT HAS LONG BEEN A DESIDERATUM WITH A large portion of the public to obtain a light, pure, and palatable preparation, invigorating and healthful in its effects, and which, while embracing all the elements of a popular beverage, should contain so little of alcoholic properties as to make it a desirable acquisition to Ladies, Invalids, and persons not accustomed to the use of alcoholic stimulants. The proprietors of Dr. Henley's I. K. Wild Grape-root Bitters, encouraged by the wonderful success of this celebrated preparation, take pleasure in offering to the public another article, which they are confident will meet with very general favor.

DR. HENLEY'S
SPICED WINE
O. K.
BITTERS.
These Bitters are carefully prepared from the choicest Wines of California, and the Rarest Spices the world affords; they act on the general system; purify the blood;
regulate the digestive organs, invigorate their action, and restore their natural tone and power; they stimulate the secretory powers of the liver, regulate the functions of the bowels, give buoyancy to the animal spirits, elasticity to the body, and health and vigor to the general constitution.
As we are engaged solely in the manufacture of BIT-TERS, we have superior facilities, and can supply the Trade with a better and cheaper quality than any other House on this Coast. Our Bitters are for sale at all respectable Bars and Groceries. Consumers should not be imposed upon with trashy imitations, but demand the genuine article.

MEMBERSHIP.

The subscription fees are TEN DOLLARS at joining, and ONE DOLLAR on the death of each subscriber. The One Dollar from each subscriber is paid to the heirs or assigns of the deceased.

THE FUNDS.

The By-Laws of the Association require that a portion of the money received as subscription fees shall be a Sinking Fund to meet assessments falling due by the delinquencies of subscribers. The balance of the money received to be used for the payment of the expenses incurred by the Association.

MEMBERS.

A subscriber failing to pay his or her assessment of One Dollar within THIRTY DAYS from receipt of notice, forfeits his or her Certificate, and all claims upon the Association, unless good cause is shown for further delay. A subscriber can forward money in advance, which amount will be credited to future assessments. The subscribers are divided into classes, including males and females. Each class is limited to 5,000 subscribers. As classes are filled, new ones will be formed. No person is so poor that he cannot pay Ten Dollars at joining and One Dollar occasionally, thus securing $5,000 to his or her heirs or assigns.

ADVANTAGES.

The advantages of this Association are, that no MONEY PAID can affect it. Its benefits are easily attainable by all, and every subscriber added to the Association enhances the interest and protection of all; the amount paid being so small, and only at long intervals, that any person can secure for his family a competency upon his death.

CLASSES.

THE CALIFORNIA LAND EXCHANGE

The California Land Exchange is a corporation formed under and in pursuance of the laws of the State of California, the incorporators thereof being:

James T. Boyd, Isaac Lankershim, William Schell, Henry Dutton, M. P. Jones, Isaac S. Allen, Charles R. Story.

The Officers, duly elected at the first meeting, are:

CHARLES R. STORY, President and Manager; C. O. WEBB, First Vice-President; I. S. ALLEN, Second Vice-President; HENRY L. DUTTON, Treasurer; AUGUSTO MARTINON, Secretary.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE: Alexander Well, Samuel Cowles, M. P. Jones, C. O. Webb, Isaac S. Allen.

The Capital Stock is one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000), in shares of one thousand dollars ($1,000) each, with the privilege of increase to five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000); the principal place of business San Francisco, and the term of duration of the corporation provided for is fifty years.

The objects of the "California Land Exchange" are, to carry on and conduct the business of dealing in Real Estate and appurtenances throughout the State of California, on commission or otherwise, by purchasing and selling (at auction and private sale), leasing, and transacting every part and department of the Real Estate business; also to loan and borrow money on Real Estate and other securities, public and private; also to promote immigration to the State, so far as may be within the power of the corporation, through and by means of correspondence and otherwise, in the pursuit of a legitimate Real Estate business, but not as an immigration association disconnected with land transactions.

It is the purpose of the incorporators, by fair dealing, reliability, impartiality, promptness, completeness of detail and a rigid observance of business rules, to merit and secure for "The California Land Exchange" the confidence of the community, and its recognition at home and abroad as the institution its name indicates.

We shall strive to accommodate not only the buyers and sellers among our present population, but be prepared to render aid and information to the vast numbers about to pour into our State, with capital seeking investment in city and interior lands.

We propose to secure the services of a first-class Real Estate Auctioneer, and hold public sales from time to time, as business may render desirable.

Our fine, large, light and well-ventilated building, (No. 526 California street, north side, between Montgomery and Kearny streets, street floor), is now open to the public in connection with real estate transactions, and is at the service, at moderate rates, of real estate dealers, who can at their option furnish their auctioneers.

With an honest purpose to accomplish all hereinabove set forth, the foregoing is most respectfully submitted by

A. WELL, HENRY DUTTON, M. P. JONES, SAMUEL COWLES, CHARLES R. STORY, C. O. WEBB, I. S. ALLEN.

Executive Committee of The California Land Exchange, 526 California street, San Francisco, April 30, 1869.

(Fortsetzung.)

Seine Schritte am Hofe umlauerten neidische Spähkunds, die er durch seinen rechtlichen Lebenswandel beschämte, fanatischer Bekehrungsbeifer, gegen den er sich durch einen vernünftigen oder treffenden Witz wehrte, gierige Spähkunds, die er mit Gefälligkeiten und Gold abspeiste, beleidigender Stolz, dem er eine edelmüthige, zurückhaltende Stellung entgegensetzte. Alles dies mußte aber dem die stillen Freuden der Wissenschaft und häuslicher Zurückgezogenheit liebenden Manne das Leben am Hofe verbittern und gern würde er, dem Ehrgeiz fremd, alle die Herrlichkeiten aufgeben haben, wenn ihn nicht das Interesse für seine leidende Nation und das tiefe Bemühen, drohende Schläge von ihr abzuwenden, an den Schimmer des Thrones gefesselt hätte. In diesem Betreff kannte er die Macht des Geldes und des Einflusses, hierin entwickelte er alle ihm zu Gebote stehenden Mittel und schaute nicht das Gespinnst der Intrigue mit noch anderen aber dichterem Jüden zu umstricken.

Doch es ist Zeit, meinen Lesern auch etwas von den früheren Schicksalen dieses Mannes mitzutheilen.

Don Isaac Abarbanel stammte aus einer der ältesten und berühmtesten Familien der jüdischen Spanier, die in Sevilla ansässig war, sein Vater aber zog nach Portugal und ließ sich in Vissibon nieder, wo Isaac im Jahre 1734 das Licht der Welt erblickte. Sorgfältig erzogen und früh eingegeben in die religiösen Alterthümer seiner Nation, war er einer derjenigen, denen die Wissenschaft schon im Lebensfrühling immer frische neuen Sinnenerneuerung verdrängende Reize bietet, und in denen sie — ihr bester Segen — keine Fröhlichkeit und Fröhlichkeit des Geistes und Körpers, aber die Grundlage und das Bildungsmittel eines festen, seines Strebens bewußten Charakters bildet.

Da erwachte das erste Gefühl der Liebe, die in erhabenen Menschen den Stahl findet, dem sie Funken für alles Gute und Große entzündet, in niedrigen, gemeinen Seelen nur verdothetes, faules Holz, das sie schnell verzehrt, ohne erwärmende Gluth hervorzuwerfen. Mit der Liebe aber entwickelte sich der Ehrgeiz — der Welt zu nützen und die Güter seiner Väter zum Wohle des Staates zu gebrauchen, auch den Portugiesen und seinem Volke ein erneuertes Beispiel von großartigem Streben in israelitischer Form zu geben. Abarbanel erwarb sich die Freundschaft Alphonsus des Fünften, wurde dessen Geheimrath und Minister, und umgab sich äußerlich mit all dem Glanze, der der Menge imponirt und die äußere Bedingung und das Attribut der Herrschaft ist. Nie vergaß er aber seiner Abstammung und seine fortgesetzten Studien wurden in den Abgrund des Weltlebens schüttet.

Aber mit dem Tode des Königs und der Nachfolge Don Juan des Zweiten begann eine schwere Periode seines Lebens. Das Gift der Verleumdung hatte ihm beim jungen Könige angeschwärzt, er wurde empfindlicher Verbindung mit dem Hause Braganza angeklagt, mußte nach Kastilien flüchten, verlor seine unbeweglichen Güter, die eingezogen und geplündert wurden, seiner Väter und Manuskripte, die man verbrannte. Die Einsamkeit, in die er sich jetzt zurückzog, währte nicht lange, sie wurde durch den Tod seines Vaters unterbrochen und sein Ruf brachten ihn in den Palaß Ferdinand's und Isabella's, wo wir ihn nach acht Jahren beim Beginn dieser Begebenheit treffen.

Eitlig überlag er seinem Sohne die noch nöthigen Geschäfte in Granada, mit Wärme empfahl er ihm die Sorge für seine unglücklichen Schicksale, auch für die schöne Dinah, denn nicht ungern sah er jetzt den Eindruck, den die Wunden auf den Charakter des flüchtigen Jünglings gemacht hatte, da er die Tugend wieder fand.

Dinah befand sich in der Familie des ehrenwerthen Arztes Arama. Dieser gelehrte Mann hatte sich ehemals gern mit dem R. Nissa und seiner geistreichen Tochter unterhalten, auch sie hörte ihm gern zu, wenn er von seinen weiten Reisen in der Wüste Arabiens, in den Gefilden am Euphrat und Tigris, in den Ruinen des alten Palastes erzählte und mit dem eigenen Reize seiner lebhaften Sprache seine Zuhörer in allen diesen fernen Gegenden schilderte. Solche Reize waren für die Jünger des Mesulap damals die Bildungsschulen ihrer Kunst, sie lernten hier von Zigeunern, Quacksalbern, Hirten die Mixturen bereiten, womit die Uebel des Lebens zu heilen waren, sie verachteten sich Kenntniß von den Sitten und der Lebensart der Völker und hatten Stoff genug, sich im Vaterlande mit dem Reize des Geheimnisses und Wunderbaren zu umgeben, der bei der Ausübung der Heilkunst dem Künstler und Befürworter förderlich ist. Aber — so wenig vermag der Mensch, der Frigoren, sich von den Fesseln seiner Zeit und seiner Umgebung zu befreien — weder die Heile, welche das Studium der Natur, noch die Erfahrung, welche die Welt sie lehrt, verliehen den Jüngern des Mesulap ein Jota Aufklärung mehr. Sie waren von den Vorurtheilen ihres Jahrhunderts, von den Mystifikationen religiöser Sekten, von dem Aberglauben der Wäste eben so wenig frei, als die meisten ihrer Patienten, so häufig fand man den christlichen Arzt eben so häufig beim Rosenkranz, als den jüdischen bei dem Gebetstisch und dem gewöhnlichen Gebeten, beobachtet aller religiösen Cerimonien, höchstens daß der mohamedanische seines Altkorans vergaß und das Trinken des Xeres mit dessen Kraft als Arznei entschuldigte.

Mit ungewöhnlicher Erfahrung in seiner Kunst verband daher auch Arama eine kindliche Frömmigkeit, und bei allen Fällen praktischer Beschäftigung vergaß er den Talmud nicht und betrachtete ihn als die reichhaltigste Quelle aller körperlichen und geistigen Heile, als eine Bibliothek für Gesunde und Kranke, wenn auch der heidnische Galen in der arabischen Uebersetzung meistens den Ausschlag für sein Thun und Treiben am Krankenbette war. Stellen wir uns bei dieser Eigenthümlichkeit den sechzigjährigen Arama mit dem Turban von rother Wolle, mit dem langen perstischen Oberkleide vorn offen getragen, aus schwarzer Seide, unter dem ein griechisches baumwollenes und durch einen rothen Gurt zusammengehaltenes Unterkleid trug, vor, mit seinen links und rechts herumblickenden großen Augen, gebogener Nase, kleinem Mund und spitzen Kinn, an dem der Bart nicht fehlte — an den langen Fingern der zarten weißen Hände kostliche Ringe, Geschenke reicher Geheilen, — so haben wir das Bild des Mannes, dem die schöne Dinah eben so willkommene wegen ihrer rühmlichen Eigenschaften, als wegen des Kostgeldes, das der große Abarbanel für sie zahlte, war. Was diese Vortheile noch überlag, war die Hilfe, die ihm ihr gebildeter Geist bei der Erziehung zweier siebenjährigen Knaben und fünfjährigen Mädchen, die als die Kinder einer geliebten Tochter ihm von seiner ganzen Familiemittheilung waren; denn die Tochter war in der Geburt des jüngsten Kindes gestorben, ihren Väter hatte die pestartige Krankheit während der Belagerung dem Großvater und den Kindern entzogen. Dinah nahm sich mit aller Sorgfalt der verwaisen Pflege an, die freudvolle Beschäftigung mit dem blondgelockten Joseph und der naiven brünetten Sara machte sie so möglich, noch liebenswürdiger, und sie vergaß zwar nicht des vereinigten Vaters, dennoch aber war diese häusliche Strebsamkeit und die Güte, mit der sie der alte Arzt behandelte, lindernder Balsam für ihren Schmerz. Was ist schöner und wo geht sich der Mensch dem ewigen Urtheil aller Größe, der Vorsehung, ähnlicher, als wenn er Bildner jünger Seelen wird und hier unheimlich eine Saat sät, für deren Aufkommen der Vater im Himmel sorgen muß, deren Früchte aber andere genießen; oder was ist erwürdiger, als dem mühen Alter Trost und Erquickung zu reichen und dem von den heißen Sandstößen des Lebens ermüdeten Fuß des Greises das sanfte Polster kindlicher Theilnahme unterzulegen? Glückliche Dinah, die du die eine Hand dem aufstehenden, die andere dem sinkenden Menschen reichst! Auch würde ich meinen Lesern die Wahrheit verhehlen, wenn ich nicht bemerke, daß die durch Arama's bescheidenen Wohlthaten und Abarbanel's Freigebigkeit bereitete größere Bequemlichkeit im Hause des Arztes ihr zufügte, ihrem Körper die völlige Entwicklung, ihrem Geiste freie Beweglichkeit verschaffte. Sind doch einmal diese kleinen Bedürfnisse, die wir uns schaffen und mit denen wir uns umgeben, höchst notwendige Erhaltungsmittel und Erfrischungsmittel für den gebildeten Geist. Freuen wir uns daher mit unserer Schönen über die großen blühenden Glorietheile, an die sich oben gemalte anschließen, die ein buntes Bild auf den mühsig ausgelegten Fußboden werfen, durch die man aus gewählten Gegenständen auf die belebte Straße Granada's hinab, über den geräuschigen Dwan in demselben maurischen Gemach, den jetzt unser Wobeherrschend über die im Zimmer hängenden Gemälde aus der Geschichte Joseph's und den Schrein aus Sordenholz, in welchem die Andenken der weiten Reise Arama's geordnet und zierlich geschriebene und gedruckte Bücher liegen, endlich über die erfrischende Kühle, die der Altan auf dem Blattdache des Hauses am Abend darbietet, wo das blaue Segeltuch des Himmels mit glänzenden Sternen durchwirkt sich über die Sitzenden wölbt und mehr als das frohe Gefühl auf den Straßen das Auge auf sich zieht. — Doch ist es Zeit, den Faden der Geschichte wieder aufzunehmen.

Alonso wollte an dem Tage, wo wir ihn von den Trümmern von Zilberis heimkehrend verließen, seinem Vorjäger gefolgt, sich in die Wohnung Dinah's begeben, als ihn der Befehl seines Hauptmanns zum Dienste im Palaße schleunigst beorderte. Einen peinlichen Tag und eine lange Nacht brachte er dort zu und erst am andern Tage war es ihm vergönnt, seine Schmach zu befreiben, begab er sich nach Dinah's Wohnung. Wie erkannte er, als man ihm dort sagte, daß nachdem gestern ein Herr die junge Jüdin besucht hätte, sie heute früh die Wohnung geräumt, wohin wußte man nicht, er stand an der Schwelle des leeren Gemaches und mit unstatem Blick sah er das Zimmer an, in welchem sie gewohnt und gewohnt hatte; mit Hast griff er nach einem in der Ecke liegenden, wahrscheinlich verlorenen Papiere, auf welchem ihm unverkennbar die bräunliche Schrift stand, froh eine Gelegenheit zu einem neuen Besuche zu haben. Er eilte zum Freunde, den er nicht zu Hause traf. Sein unruhig pothend Herz trieb ihn durch alle Straßen Granada's und immer wieder zur Wohnung Zebudah's zurück, er zürnte zum ersten Male dem Freunde, und vergaß — wie es bei dergleichen Gelegenheiten so oft zu geschehen pflegt — das nächste, zu seiner eigenen Wohnung zurückzukehren, wo ihr jetzt mehr Stunden Zebudah von der Nacht erwartete. Endlich trafen sie beide zusammen.

Beim Himmel, Alonso, wenn Seine Majestät der König Ferdinand so lange schläft, wie du bei ihm wachst, würde es schlecht um Aragonien stehen. Seit zwei Stunden erwarte ich dich vergebens in deiner Behausung, und sag wie auf Köhlen.

Und wenn du so lange wartetest, wie ich nach die herumgelaufen bin, so würde der Hohn dir schlecht bekommen sein und ich Preussischer Kräuter Bitters.

Dieses Bitter hat sich schon in Deutschland den weltberühmtesten Bittern an die Seite gestellt, und in Californien seit 1864, durch meine Geschäft in El Centro, Sacramento und hier, den größten Erfolg erringt. Derlei ist ein vorzügliches magenstärkendes Mittel, und in jeder Beziehung werden wir mit nur die besten kräftigen Kräuter, Schalen, Wurzeln und Gewürze in den richtigen Verhältnissen zu einander anzuwenden. Da ich seit 34 Jahren ununterbrochen an Wein- und Aquarell-Geschäft betheilig, so darf ich wohl versichern, daß mein

hätte einen gerösteten Freund, anstatt ich jetzt den blühenden Kusse. Sie umarmten sich.
Bald hatte Jehudah den aufmerksamen Freunde von der Veränderung erzählt, die
sein Vater in höchst eigener Person mit ihrem Schlingel getroffen, von dem Interesse welches sie bei demselben erregte und von der Aussicht, sie späterhin in dem eigenen Hause zu sehen. Die Unbefangenheit des Erzählers ließ nicht ahnen, daß ein lebhaftes Gefühl bei ihm Wurzel gefaßt hätte und in der That war Jehudah's Gemüth fast zu findlich, als daß sein Interesse jetzt schon als
wirkliche Liebe anzusehen gewesen wäre.
Alonso wurde durch des Freundes Erzählung freudig gestimmt; war es — denn so egoistisch ist selbst der edelste Mensch — die Sicherheit, die er von Jehudah's Seite für seine eigene Empfindungen fand? — Beide standen im Gespräch begriffen, ehe sie sich beiden verfielen, vor der Thür des alten
Zimmers, durch eine alte Duenna gemeldet, in das Zimmer ein, wo Dinah dem kleinen Joseph ihn mit ihren Schwanenarmen umfassen, ein arabisches Märchen erzählte. Als sie die Jünglinge begrüßt hatte, verdrödete sie den kleinen Bittenden mit der Weitererzählung bis zum Abend.

Erzählte weiter, liebe Schwester, — denn
diesen Namen hatte ihr Jehudah schon am gefrigen Tage in aufwallender gemüthlicher Laune und rascher Vertrautheit gegeben, sie nicht ungern angenommen, — ich höre die Kindermärchen gar gern, besonders aus so schönen Munde. — Erinnere ich mich doch
mit Vergnügen der alten Duenna in unserm
Hause zu Vissabon, wenn sie, mit wilden Bürscheln auf dem Schooße, von der Prinzessin Zerru erzählt und ihren drei schönen Kindern im Schöße am Tröte.

Aber Joseph wehrte mit seinen Händchen
ab und wollte, nach ächter Kinderweise, keinen zuhören lassen und lieber bis zum Abend warten. Alonso übergab Dinah das Papier, erröthend stattete sie ihm Dank für das Unbedeutende ab, dessen Bewahrung Beweis seiner Aufmerksamkeit für sie war. Das Gespräch geleitete nun über das neue Verhältnis Dinah's, das sie reizend genug schilderte, Jehudah holte die Mandoline von der Wand, um den Freund die helle Stimme und den berggreifenden Gesang seiner neuen Schwester hören zu lassen. Jeder Ton fand einen Widerklang in den gespannten Saiten von Alonso's Herzen, während Jehudah in positivlicher Stellung vom Anfange der spanischen Romane an die Hände zum Klats-chen bereit hielt und dann am Ende ein Bravo mit denselben begleitete. Dinah zeigte den Freunden die schöne Aussicht vom Alkan; terrassenförmig erhoben sich weithin die grünen Weinberge, über die im Hinter-grunde die Waldumkränzte Alpujares majestätisch herüberblickten. Sie wurden gestört durch die Ankunft Arama's, der, mit Schweiß und Staub bedeckt, feuchend von dem beschwerlichen Amte zurückkehrte und ehrerbietig den königlichen Offizier als Freund Jehudah's begrüßte, bald aber sich
in den Strom der Rede ergoß.

Ich bin weit in der Welt gewesen, junge
Herren, ich wanderte drei Tagereisen durch
die Wüste nach den Pyramiden Mizraim's, und nach den Trümmern von Ramesses, das die Kinder Israel's gebaut haben, ich habe
die Wüste, wo Moses unsere Vorfahren vierzig Jahre führte, in zehn Tagen durchwassert, ich wollte ein Jahr lang jeden Tag nach Jerusalem, um in der heiligen Stadt
mein Gebet zu verrichten, aber damals war
ich jung — jetzt wird mir der Gang durch
die Straßen Granada's schon fester — die
zweibeinigen Muekkeln da unten trocknen immer mehr zusammen. Unsere Weisen sagen:
ein gedrückter Arzt hat blinde Augen, das
will so viel sagen, meine Herren, wenn man sich selbst nicht mehr helfen kann, wird's
schwer, Andern zu helfen.

Darum war's wohl besser, lieber Arama,
ihr sehet euch zur Ruhe und genießt der Früchte eines thätigen Lebens, meinte Dinah, dem Alten Wein und Backstübchen
und ihn zum Divan ziehend.

Ei, meine Tochter, zur Ruhe! wer wird ruhen, so lange noch eine Drachme Markt in den Knochen ist, da hieße es ja mit Recht von mir, was unsere Weisen sagen: Der beste unter den Ärzten sei der Hütle werth.
Ein harter Ausdruck und schlechter Trost
für die Schüler Sien's, meinte Jehudah schallhaft.

Für die schlechten, lieber Senmor, für die
schlechten, denn die klugen Weisen wollten
damit nur sagen: wenn der Arzt auch noch
so sehr seine Pflichten thut, so kann er doch leicht etwas versehen, oder fann einmal, von der Liebe zur Bequemlichkeit verleitet, den
prekassen armen Kranken ein Stündchen
zu lange warten lassen, und da fann es schon einige derbe Rieche in der Gehenna mehr ab-geben. Die Pflichten sind groß.

Oder er fann, sagte Jehudah fort, einmal
für ein bitteres Kraut ein Paar Maravedis zu viel abnehmen; ich rede ohne Bezug, lieber Arama.

Schadet nichts, mein Senmor, erwiderte
der Alte, indem er sich bequemt auf dem Divan ausstreckte, das Glas Wein in die Hand
nahm und nach seinem Segensspruch lang-sam hinunterschöpfte. Schadet nichts, da sagen unsere Weisen wieder: Der Arzt, der umsonst curirt, wird für nichts gehalten.
Glaubet mir, eine Hauptregel zum Prospe-riren: je theurer die Medizin, desto mehr hilft
sie, je billiger der Arzt, desto eher wird er für einen Stümper gehalten. Nicht die da roth werden, wenn man sie nicht bezahlt, nein, es werden, wenn man sie nicht bezahlt, sind
die geschickten Ärzte. Ich bin ein alter Praktiker, ich war in Griechenland, da geht der Kassirer gleich mit dem Sädel hinter
her, je voller der Sädel, desto williger wird
er gefüllt.

Die Kleinen sprangen auf den Großvater
los, der sie herzlich küßte, ihnen von seinem Bachwerk mittheilte und liebevoll zu Dinah aufschauelte, die an der Ecke des Divans stand.

Alonso schauete gerührt auf die Gruppe
und besonders auf Dinah, deren Blick sich senkte, wenn er dem Alonso's begegnete.

Jehudah fuhr mit den Fingern durch die
Saiten der Mandoline.

Der Jung soll Arzt werden, Senmor, fuhr der Alte fort, die Veden Josephs her-unterstreichend, — in zwei Jahren fängt er
den Talmud an, in vier den Galen, mit Talmud und Galen kommt man durch die
ganze Welt.

Die beiden Freunde nahmen die Einladung zum Mittagessen an. Jehudah saß dem Arzte gegenüber, Alonso der Dinah, an den beiden Enden des Tisches saßen die Kinder. Das Sprechen hielt natürlich am Al-ten der in jovialer Laune von seinen Reizen
erzählte, seine Worte mit kernhaften talmudischen und biblischen Sprüchen durchspicend,
nach Tische mußten beide Kinder ihren Tischfegen beten, während der Alte seinen eigenen herfagte und dabei mit schmerzlichen Ge-sicht bald auf Dinah, bald auf Jehudah blickte, als entsände in ihm ein Gedanke, der sie beide näher betrafte. Die im Vorfall sich drängenden Kranten, die begierig auf
den jüdischen Keschutap warteten, erheischten Arama's Entfernung, und die Schichtlichkeit hielt endlich auch die Jünglinge sich verabschieden, die vom Alten recht herzlich um baldige Wiederholung ihres Besuchs gebeten wurden.

16.

Täglich traf man jetzt Jehudah auf dem
Bazar neben der großen Kathedrale, zierliche Geschenke für seine Schwester laufend, und dann mit hastiger Gite die Hauptstraße hinunter eilend, um den Triumph seines guten Geschmacks in den Augen Dinah's zu lesen.
Gerade durch diese zierliche Aufmerksamkeit
auf seine Bedürfnisse des Andern dezaubern Menschen von seinem Gefühl, durch das Er-rathen der leichten Wünsche, durch Gefällig-keiten, deren seidenes Geflecht sich fester und sanfter um unser Herz herumlegt, als das
schneidende Riebsel einer großen Wohlthat.
Diese erregt Verwunderung, Hochachtung,
aber auch das Gefühl der Unterwürfigkeit,
hinterläßt daher in niederen Seelen desto
leichter Unabbarkeit; jene binden uns mit den Blumen des Trostes und der Freundschaft an einander und machen uns gegen-seitig unentbehrlich. Alonso konnte hierin nicht mit seinem Freunde wetteifern: ein Strauß duftender schneeweißer Orangenblü-
then mit goldgelben Früchten durchbrochen, ein Kranz von blühendem Ventisken, um das Bild des geliebten Vaters zu hängen — das waren die Gaben, die er von seinen ein-fachen Wanderungen, die er jetzt mehr als
sonst suchte, der still gezeigten verehrte, die
diese Beweise schüchterner, aber eben so edler Aufmerksamkeit nicht mit der lauten Freu-digkeit wie Jehudah's künftlich gearbeitete Armspangen, wie die vom feinsten Holze gearbeitete Mandoline, aufnahm, aber mit
einem Gefühle, gemischt von erhabener
Stolze und stillem Dante. Auf beide Freunde hatte der Umgang mit Dinah einen merkwürdigen Einfluß, beide dachten beständig nur an sie, vergaßen und zurückgelassen wurden alle rauschenden Vergnügungen und selbst das Herumschweifen in der herrlichen
Umgebung; beide lebten nur für sie, aber
Jehudah hatte seinen ganzen jugendlichen
Frohsinn nach dem Hause Arama's gerichtet
und probieren brach er in den Stunden, die er dort verweilte, hervor, wozu die ge-schäftigte Thätigkeit Arama's, wenn er gerade gegenwärtig war, noch mehr Anlaß gab.
Alonso hatte sich aber auch bedeutend im
Charakter geändert, der Strahl seines Lebens
war nach dem einen Brennpunkte, seiner
Liebe, die immer mächtiger wurde, gerichtet, Schmerzhaft trat an die Stelle der Heiterkeit, eine Veränderung, die Dinah nicht auffiel, weil sie ihn nie anders gesehen hatte,
und die Jehudah nicht bemerkte, weil ihm
die Freundschaft seines Alonso in jeder äus-sern Gestalt genügte. Aber auch Dinah fühlte ihr Herz lebhafter in der Nähe des Spaniers Kopfes und nie empfundene Gefühle entkeimten ihrer Brust.

Wiederholte bringende Aufträge seines Vaters hielten Jehudah eines Tages von seinem Besuche ab, Alonso begab sich zum ersten Male allein nach der Wohnung Arama's, der ungewöhnlich lange ausblieb. Mit Klopfendem Herzen stand Alonso und mit sehnüchtem Auge sah er nach Dinah hin,
die gedankenvoll an der Fensterbrüstung
stand und auf die schwarzen Gestalten sah, die in der Dämmerung in die Pforte des gegenüberliegenden Beneditiner-Klosters schlüpfen; ein Seufzer hob ihre Brust, über-rascht sah sie den Jüngling hinter sich ste-hen.

So gedankenvoll, Senmor, und allein?
fragte Alonso langsam sich ihr nähernd und sich neben sie stellend.

Sie zeigte auf das Kloster, wo sich so eben ein großer Saal erhobte und wo die from-men Väter, um einen Tisch sitzend, eine ernstliche Berathung zu halten schienen. Beide sahen schweigend eine Zeitlang hinüber.
Bei allem Unheil, das diese Verbindungen der Welt brachten, sagte Alonso, bewundere ich dennoch den Entschluß, der Welt
zu entsagen und von ihr entfernt dem Heiligen allein zu leben. Es giebt Schicksale die das Seil, das uns an das Irdische festhält, mit einem Male zerbrechen, wohl dem
geängsteten Herzen, das dann im Höheren seine Ruhe findet.

Dinah schüttelte verneinend den Kopf.
Ich kann eurer Meinung nicht sein, Senmor, ich halte es für einen feigen Rück-zug aus dem preisenden Streite der Welt.
Und selbst der Sünder, er mache in dieser
Welt gut, was er ihr Böses gethan.

Aber wenn alle Wünsche erfordern, wenn
wir das Schönste, was wir befehen, verloren haben, wenn die Befriedigung des Ehrgei-zes uns ansetzt, wenn betrogene oder zer-rissene Liebe uns den Anhaltspunkt an alle Freunden geraubt —

Der Mond trat aus den Wolken über dem grauen Beneditinerkloster hervor und beleuchtete das erbligte Angesicht Dinah's.
Alonso ergriß ihre Hand und führte sie hastig an seine Lippen. Sie zog sie leise zurück.

WEYER & RENAULT,

For the purpose of giving a new impulse to this already favorably known establishment. For cleaning and renewing Blankets and Cloaks this establishment has no rival, and this fact is readily acknowledged by a single trial. With the same success they have extended their special attention to cleaning and renewing Carpets, Rugs, Clothing, Flannels, Dress Goods, Lace and Damask Curtains, etc., etc. The many improvements they have introduced justify them in saying that in the future the greatest regularity in their work will prevail, and the goods returned with all possible dispatch.
For the convenience of the public, ORDER BOOKS have been put up at

No. 740 Washington street,
Corner of Pine and Dupont streets,
Corner of Sutter and Powell streets,
No. 1326 Sacramento street.

HOMESTEAD LOTS FOR SALE.
THE UNDERSIGNED HAS LAID OFF INTO
1 streets, blocks, and lots a TRACT OF SIXTY ACRES OF LAND in the County of San Mateo, adjoining the southern boundary of the City and County of San Francisco.
The site of this town, called OCEAN VIEW, possesses advantages superior to any location in the neighborhood of San Francisco. It is bounded on one side by the County Road, and on another by the San Jose Railroad; whilst it is sheltered from the winds by the San Bruno Mountains on the east.
It affords a commanding view of the ocean on the west. The soil is excellent, and numerous springs of never-failing water are found upon the tract.
The aqueduct of the Spring Valley Water Works
runs within a hundred feet of the eastern boundary.
The title is indisputable, consisting of a patent
of the United States, issued directly to the undersigned. The tract is divided into 188 Lots, of 60 by 150, and are offered at reasonable prices and according to the place selected. Terms, one-fifth cash; balance in twenty-four monthly installments,
without interest.
A purchaser has the opportunity of selecting his lot, and paying for it without the expensive interposition of a Homestead Association.

on the premises, or at Room No. 34, Express Building, corner Montgomery and California streets, every WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY, between the hours of 11 o'clock A. M. and 3 P. M.
